TOO DARN NOSEY

It has been my regrettable privilege to have known many of the Paul Pry type of individuals, and strange as it may seem, I have invariably been seized with the impulse to kick, rather than kiss, no matter what their sex may have been. As far as the sex of this class is concerned I can truthfully say that the male is as great an offenderer as the female, so those who read the opening paragraph and thought I was taking a slam at the feminine fair can let their temperatures subside.

Some persons seem to be 'that way" about sticking their nasal appendages in other people's business. After due and diligent search, many contacts, and reading the pages of history from earliest recorded time. I have yet to find the "nosey" person who enjoys any popularity. In fact he or she is universally despised and avoided like a plague.

The same feeling of inquisitiveness regarding the individual applies with equal intensity to the government. The best and most effective form of government is that which operates without its subjects being conscious of it. When government and its activities are daily impinged upon our consciousness it becomes irksome and arouses a feeling of resentment. We try, as good citizens, to mind our own business and we want the government to do the same. We appreciate the fact that there are certain functions of government, which although necessary and vital will never be loudly cheered by the populace, such as our everincreasing multitudinous taxes. But we endure them even

Third Body Is Found In S. O. Plane

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 7,—UP—Utah's briny sea—Great Salt Lake—late today gave up the third of the victims who perished more than four months ago when a luxury airliner, enroute from Alameda, California, crashed into the lake, carryng its crew of three to their deaths.

Workers, making plans for raising the huge twomotored craft from its resting place, under 25 feet of salt water, found the body of Glenn A. Lanz floating on the surface of the lake.

The plane itself was located only a few days ago by divers brought here by the oil company.

CRASHED IN OCTOBER

It was early in the morning of October 6 that the airliner raidoed the local airport asking for groundwind conditions. The report was given. The plane was never heard from again.

Fearing it had crashed in the lake, searching parties sent motorboats through the salty brine and two days later found the bodies of Robert S. Allen, chief pilot, and George O. Anderson, mechanic.

TO RAISE PLANE

The bodies of Allen and Anderson were nude. They were, it was learned later, able swimmers, and apparently disrobed in an effort to swim to shore. The body of Lenz, who could not swim, was fully clothed. It was in good condition, being incrusted with salt.

The plane will be raised Sunday or Monday. Divers reported the cause of the crash is not apparent, the plane being intact except for one bent propeller which could have been caused by striking the heavy water of the lake—laden with more than 25 percent salt and other mineral content.

HOOVER HITS U.S. CONTROL OF BUSINESS

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. March 7—UP—Herbert Hoover tonight demanded that the Roosevelt administration's policy of "government-dictated" business be abandoned and that for it be substituted the "American principle" of government regulation of business.

In the sixth of his addresses attacking the New Deal the former president told the Young Republican League of Colorado that this six-point program, embodying "the American system of regulation," must become national policy if "the American system," is to be retained:

6 POINT PROGRAM

1. Business must regulate its own prices and profits through competition. We must compel honest competition through prevention of monopolies and unfair practices.

2. The semi, yet natural monopolies, such as railroads and utilities, must be regarded as to rates to prevent the misuse of their privilege.

TAXES TAKE SHIRT

3. Banking, finance, public markets, and other functions of trust must be regulated to prevent abuse and misuse of trust.

4. Certain groups must be ap-

Agreement Is Reached In S. F. Dock Disputes

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7 —UP—A source of many disputes on the San Francisco waterfront was adjusted tonight with employers and the International Longshoremen's Association represented as agreeing on a slingload of 35 cases of tinned goods or 1960 pounds as a uniform load.

Jubilant over what they considered a victory, although the load was two cases more than they had agreed to handle in a recent dispute, the International Longshoremen's Association planned to extend the uniform plan to all Pacific Coast ports.

Harry Bridges, local leader of the I. L. A., said loads have been heavier in the other ports than in San Francisco.

Paden Wins Fight; School Strike Ends

ALAMEDA, March 7—UP— William G. Paden, known nationally in educational circles, and the 3000 school students who struck when he was removed from the superintendency of city schools, emerged victorious tonight in a dispute which for a time threatened civil war in this city, built on an island off San Francisco bay.

It took a a legal decision, however, to settle the strife whch the students had attempted to adjust by refusing to attend classes, their parents had sought to settle by recall action against public officials, and a city administration that had tried to hold within bounds by recruiting a private army and threatening to oust the police department from its headquarters.

Earl Warren, district attorney, of Alameda county, who appealed to both sides, decided the board of education had no authority to terminate Paden's contract, which had three and one-half years to run at $6000 annually.

The contract provided for dismissal only after proof of charges of misfeasance or similar accusations which might render the holder unfit to remain in office. Mayor Hans Roebke, leader of the faction which last Tuesday ousted Paden, had charged the city school head with failing to co-operate with the administration.

Warren's decision was believed to have removed the last obstacle to normal resumption of school work Monday

Island Revolt Leader Is Held

SAN JUAN, P. R., March 7—UP —Attacks against American 'tyranny' were made public today in San Juan today as insular political leaders split sharply over the arrests on Thursday of Pedro Albizu Campos, nationalist leader.

Campos, at liberty on $10,000 bond, is charged with conspiracy to overthrow the government of the United States by force and reciting an "army" to employ against the United States. Six other nationalists were arrested as heads of the independence movement.

HOLOHAN'S SUCCESSOR APPOINTED

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, March 7—UP— Court Smith, blunt and brawny peace officer who at present directs the affairs of Folsom state prison, was named warden of San Quentin Prison, the largest penal institution in America, late today.

Smith was chosen to succeed James B. Holohan, whose formal resignation becomes effective April 15.

ONLY PERSON CONSIDERED

Smith was the only person considered by the State Board of Prison directors, meeting here today, to take Holohan's seat on top of the "San Quentin powder keg," as the retiring administrator often referred to the prison which houses more than 5,000 convicts. It was planned for half that number.

The new warden will come to San Quentin after presiding for nine years over one of the nation's toughest prisons, the penal institution maintained by California in the Sacramento valley for its recidivists.

Military Assistance Will Be Asked By French After Hitler Moves Troops Into Rhine Zone

(Copyright, 1936, By United Press)

The fatal numbers "1 9 1 4" figuratively burned in the skies of Europe last night after Adolf Hitler had poured his goose-stepping troops into the forbidden Rhineland zone towards the French and Belgian borders.

Europe was shaken as it has not been in 22 years. A French government spokesman announced France would appeal to the Powers for military assistance as well as the imposition of financial and economic sanctions against Germany.

FRANCE TO ASK ALLIES FOR SUPPORT

PARIS, March 7 —UP— France will ask the League of Nations and Britain, Italy and Belgium, as signers of the Locarno treaty, to take military and economic measures against Germany, an official Foreign Office spokesman announced tonight.

Both financial and economic sanctions would be asked.

IN CONFERENCE

Under the Locarno treaty, signed by Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Germany, the signatories are bound to come to the defense of any member attacked by another signatory.

As the spokesman made his announcement, the heads of the French army, navy and air forces, chiefs-of-staff and cabinet members were in anxious conference on the military aspects caused by Adolf Hitler's dispatch of troops into the demilitarized Rhineland.

LEAVES CANCELLED

The government called France's political military allies into conversation, discussing with the representatives of Britain, Italy, Belgium, Poland, Russia, Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia means of joint resistance to Germany.

The war ministry announced:

"Part of the French army's Sunday leaves of absence have been cancelled. It is not in all France but a part. We cannot say what part."

TROOPS TO BE MOVED

France while not mobilizing or calling out reserves, nevertheless instantly started preparations to move troops from the interior towards the German border. An unspecified number of week-end military leaves were cancelled.

France's political and military allies, bound by treaty to go to her aid if attacked, were called into consultation.

URGENT MEETING PLANNED

League officials in Geneva, shocked by the news, prepared for an urgent meeting of the council to discuss action against Germany which might possibly precipitate Europe into war.

British officials, refused to take any action with regard to held worried conferences. A French session of the cabinet will be held Monday.

RUSSIA TO ACT

It was reported in London that Soviet Russia, which was excoriated by Hitler in a speech to the Reichstag, may block any effort by Germany to return to the League of Nations.

Rome, which delayed the crisis over Ethiopia by accepting "in prin-

LEAGUE TO HOLD MEET ON THURSDAY

GENEVA, March 7—UP— The Council of the League of Nations tonight was tentatively convoked for an urgent session on Thursday to consider an impending French

France was expected to ask for military action as well as financial and economic penalties and League officials were gravely concerned over the dangerous role they must play if they grant the French request.

The date of the Council meeting will be fixed definitely after the French appeal arrives tomorrow. Meanwhile, a conference of signatories to the Locarno treaty will be held here Monday afternoon or evening.

Although Germany is not a member of the League, Germany can be punished under League rules, according to the Locarno treaty, as remilitarization of the Rhineland zone constitutes aggression.

N. Y. Building Strike Spreads; Peace Is Asked

NEW YORK, March 7 — UP — Mayor LaGuardia tonight made another appeal to both sides in New York's building service strike to settle their differences.

The mayor, actuated by the strike into new areas, sent identical telegrams to the Building Service Employees' Union and the Realty Advisory Board on Labor Relations, asking them to settle the strike on the basis of a preferential shop and arbitration of wages and hours.

Meanwhile, the strike had spread to New York's teeming Grand Central district.

Elevator operators, maids, bellboys, porters, doormen and furnace tenders walked out and paralyzed Tudor City, one of the largest residential developments in the city.

Cardinals Nose Out Trojans Quintet; Will Meet Washington Five

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, March 7.—UP—Stanford University won the basketball championship of the southern division of the Coast Conference tonight by defeating University of Southern California 39 to 36.

Stanford's first divisional title in 15 years gave Coach John Bunn's boys the right to meet University of Washington next week for the conference championship.

CLOSE GAME

In a game so close that no team ever was ahead by more than four points, through the first 37 minutes, Stanford closed fast to defeat the team which ruled the conference last year and the year before that.

U. S. C. was off to an early lead, holding a 6-4 advantage after five minutes of play. Howell Turner, who carried the hod for Stanford in the first half, counted with a field goal that tied the score. Eddie Oram, Trojan guard, tipped the scales the other way with a foul toss.

STANFORD LEADS

Turner's field goal pushed Stanford ahead again. U. S. C. tied the score on a foul toss and Hank Luisetti, highest scorer in the conference division in the regular season, tossed in a foul for a one-point edge.

Captain Jack Hupp, of U. S. C. deadly accurate from the free-throw line tonight, dropped in two gift tosses for a 10 to 9 lead.

FAST FINISH

Turner broke through for his third field goal and also counted a foul. Stanford was leading 12-10. At half time, the Trojans were leading 21 to 19.

With three minutes remaining in the game, Stoffen and Turner followed long tosses with tip-in shots which were good for two points each. Hunt inserted a field goal but Hank Luisetti counted again and Stanford had a 39 to 35 edge as the whistle sounded.

HUPP HIGH MAN

At the same moment, Jack Calderwood fouled Hupp and after the crowd was cleared from the floor the Trojan captain scored his foul toss to give him a record of seven out of eight tries for the night.

Hupp's accuracies from the 15-foot line made him high scorer, with 19 points, including 12 he collected on six field tosses. Steffen was tops for the winners with 15, including six field goals.

Goodcell Says Governor Must Be G. O. P. Head

SACRAMENTO, March 7 —UP— The disorganized condition of the Republican party in California will force Governor Frank F. Merriam to assume active leadership during the presidential primary campaign, Rex B. Goodcell, internal revenue collector under Presidents Harding and Coolidge told the United Press today.

"Being one of the two Republican governors in the west, he can't sit back and disclaim responsibility," Goodcell said. "He should submit a list of delegates pledged to himself in the interest of business and the Republican party of California, which under his leadership will fight the battles for California at the national convention.

"Merriam has refused to commit himself in past weeks, when his friends have sought to advance him as his party's nominal choice for President. Political circles here understand he will not enter the fight unless he can head the state's delegation and name a majority of its membership.

ETHIOPS FLEE IN FEAR OF BOMB RAIDS

ADDIS ABABA, March 7 —UP— Hundreds of residents fled from the capital of Ethiopia to the hills tonight as fears of an impending Italian bombing increased.

Half the population evacuated and the others were ready to leave at the first alarm of danger.

HEAVY CLOUDS

Heavy clouds forestalled possibility of the expected bombing today but apprehensive residents and foreigners packed their belongings throughout the night.

Sewing machines, most prized possessions of many natives, left first along with great cases of official documents.

RESIDENTS FLEE

Natives fled to familiar places miles from the capital and foreigners followed paths marked by the British legation to the nearest bomb shelters. Hundreds of the refugees went to nearby Mount Antoto. The government records were taken to mountain storehouses, 25 miles southwest, near Gennet, the capital during the regime of Emperor Menelik.

Taxis and other vehicles left in the city were chartered by persons ready to flee at the first sign of danger.

News flashed from the south that a squadron of planes was passing over Sidamo province and headed for the capital caused greatest anxiety. Clouds may have turned them back.

Ordered To Oust Rebels

CABINET LEADERS were held and assassinations of leading Japanese officials were reported during the daring military coup in Tokyo in which an infantry regiment seized all lines of communication. Above is a unit of the Imperial Guards ordered to drive out the rebels.

NEW YORK, March 7 — Wendy Hiller, young English actress, is the newest darling of the autograph hounds. They stand outside the Shubert Theatre, wait until the star of "Love on the Dole" emerges, and then descend upon her with that "no-for-an-answer" manner which distinguishes all good members of the autograph hunting breed.

There's really no sense to it. Miss Hiller, who is only twenty-one, comes from Manchester, where she played a variety of small parts with the local repertory company. When the London production of "Love on the Dole" got under way a couple of years ago, they picked the Manchester girl because her accent and her looks just fit the part.

From then on the critics started giving her raves and the public began following her around—much to the young lady's own undiminished surprise. She is attractive and her playing is sincere, but the marks of the amateur are still strongly visible, and the play itself is a rather gloomy tale not exactly calculated to set hearts a-flutter.

It's one of those capricious twists with which the theater is full. My own guess is that most people can't get over the fact of such a pretty girl using such an outlandish dialect.

TEMPEST—Wilhelm Furtwaengler the tall and passionate conducter from Berlin, will direct the Philharmonic Orchestra next season, succeeding Toscanini. Already there's a tempest brewing over the appointment.

Ten years ago Furtwaengler refused to come back to New York, partly because he considered himself slighted in favor of the Toscanini hysteria. Accustomed to universal homage in Europe, he felt that he had been shabbily treated by the critics and the management over here.

When the Nazi government began bearing down on Jewish musicians, in 1933, Furtwaengler wrathfully protested to Hitler and Goebbels—an act of unusual courage for a German in Germany. The friction made him resign his official posts, and it was only after the Philharmonic appointment last week that he was returned to his original status by the government heads. Now certain New Yorkers are shouting "Nazi!" at him, and his return will undoubtedly be accompanied by a public rumpus.

Furtwaengler is unquestionably the greatest orchestral leaders alive not excepting Toscanini. His concerts in New York were breathtaking exhibitions of a profound and noble art. He is also a man of great intellectual courage and conviction.

But fortune's wheel seems to be turning against him.

EQUIPPED—The president of a small South American country was entertained by friends at a dinner in the Ritz-Carlton the other night. The subject of revolutions naturally came up, and the South American was queried about conditions in his native state.

"Oh, I never worry about revolutions," said the foreign visitor. "I see to it that my subjects have plenty to drink—and anyone who has plenty to drink can't shoot straight!"

SNICKS—Most hard-working theatrical unit in town at the moment is the Pickens Sisters. Two cabaret shows a night, five shows daily at a movie house and one daily performance over the radio occupies their waking hours. . . . Busiest scene designer, and top in his profession, is Jo Mielziner. This season he's done nine shows, including the magnificent suspension bridge in "Winterset." . . . Celestine of the Waldorf, tells me that a recently opened building in Copenhagen is piped not only for water but also for ice cold beer. . . . It wouldn't work so well in New York, though. Chief Magistrate Schurman has just announced that drunken drivers will be automatically fined a minimum of $100 . . . And you know how hot New Yorkers get in the summertime.

"Man," Subject At Science Church

"Then hast dealt well with thy servant, O Lord, according unto thy word. Thy hands have made me and fashioned me." These words from Psalms comprise the Golden Text to be read Sunday, March 8, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Man." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. . . For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him?" (I Cor. 2: 9, 11 to 2).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "God is the Principle of man, and man is the idea of God. . . Man is the family name for all ideas—the sons and daughters of God. All that God imparts moves in accord with Him reflecting goodness and power" (pp. 476, 515.)

AIR CORPS TO MANEUVER AT DESERT LAKE

MARCH FIELD, March 7.—UP—For the first time in the history of the army air corps, concrete bombs will be used in bombardment practice when the first wing of the general headquarters air force holds semi-annual maneuvers over Muroc dry lake in the Mojave desert, March 10 to 20, Brig. Gen. Henry B. Clagett, commanding the first wing, announced today.

Last exercises were held in the San Joaquin valley last November, when the first wing dispersed to several civilian airdromes in that region.

This month the army plans call for all the first wing except the 19th airship squadron at Moffett Field, Sunnyvale, and the 19th bombardment group at March Field, to be concentrated in one camp at Muroc Dry lake.

Wives, mothers and sweethearts of officers and men at the camp will have to depend on the federal mail for news of their men. The only telephone connection will be inside the camp itself. There will be no telegraph line and the official radio transmitting set will be limited to official business.

Four hundred enlisted men and 60 officers from the 17th attack group and the first wing headquarters detachment at March field will take part in the maneuvers. Three hundred enlisted men and 50 officers from the Seventh bombardment squadron will make up the contingent from Hamilton Field, Marin county.

Snow Saved Two In Break Try From Hangman

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 7.—UP—Demands that capital punishment be reinstated in South Dakota, were sounded today as a murder charge was prepared against Claude and Harold Carrier, participants in a break from the state prison yesterday.

Only the fact that the fugitives ran into a snowdrift which prevented them from crossing the Minnesota boundary, saved the brothers from possible death from hanging, it was pointed out by U. S. District Attorney George Philip. If they had crossed the state line, they would have been subject to federal prosecution under the federal kidnap law, providing hanging as a penalty for injury to a victim.

Alaska Colony Held Success By Northern Scribe

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7.—UP—"There has been no depression in the Matanuska farm colony or any other part of Alaska, Reginald M. Thomas, editor and manager of the Fairbanks (Alaska) Daily News-Miner, said today upon arrival for his annual vacation.

"Matanuska has already proven itself a success," he said. "Despite the fact the New Dealers could have gained far more good from that area if left and untouched one by choosing it up to established old miner, said prospectors.

"Believe me, he said, "we have an opportunity land up there. Why in Matanuska, these farmers have already grown every single crop."

BING CROSBY IN COMEDY AT THE FOX TODAY

"Anything Goes" the screen version of the musical comedy which was such a pronounced success on the stage, comes to the Fox theater today, together with "Man Hunt" featuring Ricardo Cortez, Marguerite Churchill, Chick Sale and William Gragan.

In the role of Billy Crocker, the dashing young hero of "Anything Goes" there is Bing Crosby, with Ethel Merman playing her original Broadway part of Reno, the former evangelist night club singer. Charlie Ruggles appears as Public Enemy No. 13, with Ida Lupino as an elusive British reiress and Arthur Treacher as an Englishman.

"Anything Goes" presents a plot that gives Bing Crosby opportunity to croon many a tune not only beneath the moon but beneath lifeboat tarpaulins, portholes and other unexpected covers. Among the songs are Crosby's "Sailor Beware" "Moonburn" "Lady Fair" and "My Heart and I" Parodies of Cole Porter's "You're the Top' are one of the highlights.

"Man Hunt' concerns the pursuit of an escaped bank robber by Federal agents and the part in it by a small town reporter and his sweetheart, a school teacher, the big town newspapermen and a romancing exsheriff.

While the title suggests something dramatic, the picture is just the opposite, a comedy that should provide a good time, as it laughingly derides glorified bank robbers and gangsters.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, March 7— Wall Street already is figuring out ways of juggling Roosevelt's new tax on undivided corporation surpluses. The idea is to issue dividends, but in the same envelope ask shareholders to re-invest in a new issue. This avoids taxes and at the same time means more stock-issuing commissions for Wall Street. . . Keep an eye on General Hagood and the Senatorial situation in South Carolina. His friends are urging him to run against Senator Jim Brynes, close friend of the President. . . The March issue of the United Mine Workers Journal carries a signed article by Mrs. Roosevelt urging the wife of mine workers to organize in order to "do away with what is ordinarily known as the company town and the company store" . . . A prominent speakers' bureau is distributing advertising literature listing outstanding members of Congress available for lecture engagements. Among them are Senators Gerald P. Nye, Pat Harrison, Royal S. Copeland, Alben Barkley, Rush Holt, Thomas Gore, Burton K. Wheeler, and Representatives Henry B. Steagall, Hamilton Fish and Mary T. Norton. . . Colonel D. H. Sawyer, who was General Hugh Johnson's candidate for Public Works Administrator when the agency was first created in 1933, has been named to a new post just established by the Treasury. Sawyer is head of the Section of Space Control in the Procurement Division which has charge of handling the many millions of dollars of government rental leases outside of Washington.

DARK HORSE

Word is going the rounds of inner Republican circles to watch Congressman Chester C. Bolton. The "write-in" campaign . . . Some Hiles Roral ck-Fletcher group of members of the House Ways and Means Committee, now framing the new tax bill, have conferred privately with Secretary of State Hull on the legislation. As a member of the House many years ago, Hull drafted the first income tax bill after adoption of the Constitutional amendment making such legislation valid. Secretary Hull says there are only four members of congress capable of writing a tax bill but he refuses to name them. . . Representative Wesley E. Disney, Oklahoma Democrat, wants to establish a new kind of West Point. He has introduced a bill to create an "Academy of Public Affairs" for the training, at government expense of young men and women who would enter the diplomatic and civil service. . . Union seamen have submitted a proposal to the President to establish a National Maritime Labor Board as a means of bringing and maintaining peace in the shipping industry. Their plan is modeled after the Railroad Labor Board, which for years acted as impartial arbiter between rail executives and workers.

Each month during the last eight has established a new record of airmail volume. If this rate continues postal authorities say that in another year, government subsidies can be abolished and the service put on a straight paying basis.

Old Guard leaders views the wealthy young Clevelander with much favor, and in case the GOP convention is deadlocked they may trot him out as a dark horse. . . Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky piled his family into a car the other night and drove to Baltimore to see Charlie Chaplin. He could not wait for the show to come to Washington. . . For the first time in history, the Government is quizzing home-owners of the $10,000 class as part of a survey on how families spend their money. It is a Department of Labor project with WPA money. . . Next month CCC boys will celebrate the third anniversary of the founding of the Civilian Conservation Corps. . . England's King Edward VIII is a wheat farmer, with lands of his own in Alberta, Canada. . . Of the six newly appointed Governors of the Federal Reserve System, three are in their forties: Eccles, 45; Szymczak 41; and McKee 43. Oldest members are only 54. . . Big-time artists, hired to decorate the walls of new government buildings are paid on strictly a piece-work basis. Doug Fairbanks, Lady Ashley Are Married In Paris

PARIS, March 7—UP— Douglas Fairbanks and Lady Silvia Ashley, beautiful 32-year-old British noblewoman and former actress, were married today in a simple ceremony at town hall.

Waiving the continuous residence requirements after two days of pleading by Fairbanks, District Mayor Gaston Drucker performed the service under fat cupids that look down from cornices of the ornate salle des mariages of the Mairie.

Jesse I. Straus, American ambassador, stood as Fairbanks' witness. Lady Ashley's witness was Elizabeth Gauvet, a London friend.

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, March 7 —UP— Katharine Higgins never receives a credit in a Warner Brothers' picture but her power is keenly felt.

Katharine is manager of the studio cafe. That is rather important as actors and actresses are much like soldiers in that their food has much to do with the quality of their work.

Not only does she supervise diets but she has to "mother" both male and female stars.

Maintaining the diet schedules is rather easy, Miss Higgins says.

"It's the 'mother roles' that sometimes have me guessing," she explains.

"When I know a certain actress is on a diet, there is one way to handle the problem. That is to say 'no' to each and every demand for food. If you just supply that answer for their pleadings everything will work out all right.

"Then, too, a bit of instruction to the waitresses not to mention a food delicacy helps a lot. A number of the dieters never think they are starving to death until they see some food item they like but can't have. They never seem to think of them without visual encouragement."

In the list of stars who seek advice from her are Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Errol Flynn, Joan Blondell, Jean Muir and Bette Davis.

"They ask all kinds of questions," says Miss Higgins. "The married ones want to know how to patch up a marital tiff. Of they might want a suggestion for a birthday gift for the wife or husband. Then the single young men practically want me to conduct an 'advice to the lovelorn' column."

Among her steadiest customers is blonde Bette Davis. It isn't marital advice the star wants, Miss Higgins says: it's advice on how to perfect her art.

"When Miss Davis finds a certain bit of characterization a problem in human reactions or something like that and is somewhat in doubt as how the situation should be handled, I try to help her out," Miss Higgins explains.

"I watch the customers in the cafe. While they're eating they are not acting and in a surprisingly short time I'm almost always able to observe persons in a similar situation. Then I point it out to Miss Davis and she adapts the general idea to the picture situation. I think it adds to the naturalness of her work."

Willing to offer almost any advice—when asked for it Miss Higgins draws the line on one subject.

"I never will tell them how to bet their money on the races," she says.

Marianne Minear lives with her mother and her sister, Eve, in a shabby little house in the wrong end of Centerville. Though she is poor, Monte Thurston, her childhood sweetheart from the fashionable part of town, has stuck to her through high school. Near graduation time, however, he begins to notice another girl, Sabra Anderson, who has the money to make the most of her charms. Mr. Gleason, a real-estate man from New York, offers to buy the Minear property. Through a hint dropped by a nice-looking young man with Gleason, they sell the house at a good price. Meanwhile, there has been gossip in Centerville about Eve and her employer, Charley Forham, a married man. Eve begs her mother to give her money to go away to New York. When Mrs. Minear promises to think it over, Eve says ominously, "Don't think too long."

He had passed her by! Was walking away with Sabra—laughing.

CHAPTER II

IT WAS the night of graduation. Marianne moved on wings of happiness as she surveyed every angle of the gorgeous, shimmering thing that was her gown. Net over satin.

She saw the admiration leap in Monte's eyes the moment she reached the big, back-stage room where the excited Seniors waited. But—a little chill went over her—he didn't rush up as he usually did, and he hadn't asked her to the Garden Walk, where all of the Seniors who had dates were going to dance after graduation exercises. But he would, of course.

Dick Mains sauntered up. "Gee, Marianne, you're an eyeful. How about the Garden Walk?"

"Why, thanks, but——"

"Monte?" Dick guessed gloomily.

Marianne nodded.

After that, they filed onto the stage and, before they realized it, graduation was over. Marianne wanted to laugh and wanted to cry. A little lump had formed in her throat during the prayer, had stayed there during the speaker's stirring address. Then her mother was kissing her and people were crowding about with congratulations.

GRADUATION was over. Girls and boys were pairing off. Where was Monte? Marianne's hand clutched her ribbon-tied diploma. Monte? Then she saw him coming. She closed her eyes in relief.

But when she opened them again Monte had passed by! Passed by! He was walking toward Sabra. They moved away together! Laughing. They didn't even look toward the slim figure that was Marianne.

"Did that bird stand you up?" It was Dick Mains.

"I guess I misunderstood." Marianne managed to say the words carelessly. She was thinking fiercely "It isn't fair. Sabra has everything and——"

"What of it?" Dick tossed at her. "My invite still stands."

"Th-thanks, Dick. I'll go."

The big auditorium was emptying rapidly. Marianne went out with Dick. She didn't want to go to the Garden Walk now—and see Sabra clinging triumphant to Monte. But—Dick was a good dancer . . . and had a brand new car. . . . Marianne tried desperately to console herself. She was better off than a lot of girls. Doris Kelsey and Maude Gray, for instance. Their eyes had been so wistful and envious as she had left with Dick. They lived in the wrong end of town, too. Marianne sighed. Life was cruel.

WHEN they reached the Garden Walk, Marianne saw Monte stare as she approached the crowd with Dick. She smiled, and held his gaze proudly.

She and Dick started to dance. It was as they were circling the floor the second time that Marianne became conscious of a pair of exceedingly blue eyes watching her. The young chap who had been with the real-estate man! He was leaning on the spectators' railing. She and Dick were just opposite—very near.

On an impulse, she leaned toward him. "We got our price," She smiled.

"And I got fired," he answered laconically.

"O-h-h . . ."

Dick whirled Marianne on. When they neared the spot again, the young man was gone.

Later, about the sandwich counter at Lindy's favorite rendezvuos of the high-school crowd, there was much gay chatter of summer plans. Sabra was going to a fashionable resort. Monte to a dude ranch in Wyoming. Dick to the Canadian Rockies.

Marianne was silent, simply because there was nothing to say except, "I'm going to work." It sounded so drab and uninteresting. 'You don't belong in this crowd," a voice within her whispered. "You haven't money, and money is—everything."

"What are you doing this summer?" Sabra's voice was silky as she turned to Marianne.

"Why, I . . . I'm going to work."

Silence followed her announcement and Marianne could hear the voice louder than ever "Money is everything."

The evening dragged along. She was glad when Dick finally drove her home. She thanked him, promised to see him again, and went inside.

SHE was startled by the sound of sobs. Her mother stumbled into the room.

"Marianne!"

"Mother what——?"

"Eve—she's gone! We—we quarrelled this morning when she insisted upon having that money. I didn't tell you. Didn't want to spoil your graduation."

"But if she didn't have the money, how——"

"She's gone with Charley Forham."

"You mean. . . ." Marianne was stunned.

Mrs. Minear had crumpled into a chair. She was shaking violently. "She left a letter." The words were forced out. "Said Charley Forham would do for her what her own mother wouldn't do. She couldn't stand it here any more."

Marianne sank down on a stool by her mother's knee. Finally, she spoke, in a flat tired voice.

"Mother, I understand why Eve ran away. If you don't have money—oh, I can't say what I mean—but I'm going to have money some day. More than anyone in this town!"

She stopped. A hard little shell was forming about her heart, shutting out feeling, bringing a grim, purposeful light into her eyes.

BACKACHE

Certainly, backache is a very common symptom from which many people are suffering. The number of patients consulting doctors for the relief of backache is unbelievably large. This distressing symptom has a variety of causes, among which the following are the most important:

1. Spinal lesions. There are various forms of backache caused by lesions of the spine. These lesions have been caused in some cases by accidents, faulty postures assumed in certain occupations, or relaxation of the muscles attached to the spine. Spinal lesions are sublaxed or partially dislocated vertebrae which have been pushed out of position or have slipped out of place because of muscular weakness. Backache from spinal lesions may occur at any part of the spine, and will also affect various organs by an irritation or inhibition of the nerves issuing from the sublaxed vertebrae.

2. Misplacement of the uterus. In women, misplacement of this organ will produce a persistent dragging-down ache in the lower back because of the fact that the uterus is pulling upon ligaments which are attached to the spine.

3. Lumbago.

4. Bladder irritation. Inflammation or irritation of the bladder is a constant source of distress in the lower back and a chronic irritation of the bladder may produce more distress in the back than in the bladder itself.

5. Kidney stones. These stones may induce a sharp, colicky pain on either side slightly toward the back.

6. Occupational strains. An ache in the upper back is sometimes produced by occupational strains, such as those occurring in sewing, or in any type of work which encourages a leaning over position of the upper half of the body. If your work is done sitting down and is of the type which favors leaning over, try to bend from the hips, keeping the upper back straight.

7. Muscular weakness. Backache may result simply from general weakness of the back muscles which have not been sufficiently exercised.

8. Arthritis of the spine. It is true that the patient may easily mistake the pain caused from arthritis of the spine with sciatica, lumbago, sacro-iliac slip, etc. In a large percentage of the cases, which are believed to be due to other causes, a careful examination will show that the ache is really produced by arthritis.

9. A sacro-iliac slip will produce a characteristic distress through the lower back. The lesion may occur on either side and will be located in the sacro-iliac region.

Judging from the variety of causes capable of producing backache, it becomes readily apparent that treatment will vary according to the cause. You may be sure that when the cause is entirely removed, the backache will disappear and will not return.

Those of you who have any questions about backache which you would like to have answered, are welcome to write to me. I will be glad to provide you with all of the information possible to send by mail. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper and enclose one large, self-addressed envelope and [illegible] cents.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Effect of High Blood Pressure on Eyes)

Question: Mr. Kent I. writes: "Will you explain to me how high blood pressure affects the eyes?"

Answer: Eye changes are not seen in every case of hypertension or high blood pressure; however, certain eye disturbances are fairly common. The eye symptoms depend upon the interference with the blood supply resulting from the abnormal changes in the small arteries of the eye which changes may accompany high blood pressure. The retina fails to receive a normal blood circulation and such symptoms as blurring of the vision and haziness may then become noticeable. When the arteries of the eyes are diseased, they commonly become narrowed, thickened and tortuous. If one of the arteries is ruptured or bursts, retinal hemorrhage is the result.

(Polypi)

Question: Dick writes: "I have been troubled by soft growths which form in the nose. The doctor says the best thing to do is to have them cut out."

Answer: You are probably troubled by polypi. A polypus is a soft tumor, springing from the mucous membrane which lines the nose. When a number form in the back of the nose they may cause difficult breathing, a sensation as though the nose is stopped up, and an impairment of the sense of smell. The larger growths may require surgical removal. However, removal is comparatively simple and is not dangerous. It is best that you follow the instructions outlined by your doctor. I have a separate article on the subject of Polypi which I will be glad to send you if you wish additional information. To secure the article, write to me in care of this newspaper and help pay the cost of mailing the material back to you by enclosing ten cents. Send a large, self-addressed envelope.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

When a Bone Breaks Great Haste in Calling a Physician Is Not Necessary

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

VERY few persons reach adult life without having suffered from a broken bone some place. It may only have been a finger or some of the bones of the nose, but it is some place. The national pastime of automobile driving and the many forms of sports all tend to increase the number of fractured bones.

Because these accidents are so common and usually occur at a distance from medical aid, it is well that we all know something about them.

DR. CHRISMAN

We have many kinds and degrees of fractures. Early in life we see the so-called "green stick" fracture, which is a bone broken only partly through its circumference. It is the same break that occurs when we bend a green stick over a knee. It first bends and then some of the fibers on the distended side tear apart and the stick or bone remains bent.

Often it is possible to bend it back easily and no great damage is done. Again, due to a twist, a bone may be broken part way through and then split the long way, or it may be broken straight across. The ends of the bones may not be moved out of position, or they may be separated and the two ends slip past each other causing much difficulty and resulting in shortening of the limb.

Direct Blow Case

Breaks are sometimes caused by a direct blow, in which case the muscles and tissues where the blow is received are bruised and crushed. If the ends of the bones are separated the tissues at the site of the break are torn and lacerated and much blood may seep out into the tissues. A break due to bending the bone is more likely to cause tearing of the muscles.

A simple fracture is one in which the bones are broken in one place and the skin is not broken. A compound fracture is one in which the bone is broken and either the ends of the bone have been forced out through the skin or the cause of the break has made an opening from the outside into the seat of the fracture. These are much more serious because of the difficulty of holding the fragments together while allowing dressing of the external wound.

There is also danger of infection entering the wound and interfering with the healing of the break. A "comminuted fracture" is one in which the bones are broken into several fragments and may be either simple or compound.

The bones of some persons break more easily than those of others, according as the bones are soft or brittle. Children suffering from rickets are likely to have green stick fractures. Older persons' bones break clean or into several fragments; and some constitutional diseases allow frequent fractures. Fractures of the wrists and ankles are very frequent, and are very difficult to adjust without some deformity resulting.

Falls Often Cause Them

Those at the wrist are caused by falls on the hands extended in the effort to save the head and face. Those of the ankle are usually due to a twist in stumbling or slipping. The signs of fracture are usually pain at the seat of the break, which may be slight or extremely severe.

The most important sign is deformity and shortening. The unnatural position in which the limb or part is seen is the surest indication of a break. It may be due to swelling, but pressure will show if it is only that. A slight movement of the part causes severe pain and the rubbing together of the broken fragments causes a grating sound we call "crepitus." This is almost a sure indication of a fracture.

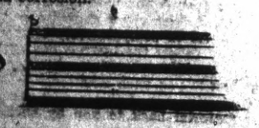

Movement of the part is restricted, but if only slight displacement is present the person may walk on or use the injured part. The immediate treatment is to recognize the kind of injury and keep it quiet, avoiding all movement and use.

The injury of the surrounding parts interferes with correct adjustment of the break, until the swelling subsides. The great hurry and rush to get a physician and adjust the bones at once are unnecessary. Put the injured part in as comfortable position as possible, using a splint, articles of clothing, a pillow or cushion to hold it quiet. Keep warm and dry if possible. In calling a physician, let him know what he needs to bring.

Dr. Chrisman offers readers the privilege of addressing questions to him care of this column. He will answer questions of general interest in his regular daily column.

Uniform Heat Skillet

A new skillet is designed for cooks who burn food when their frying-pans develop a "hot spot" in the center before the rest of the pan gets hot. Made of copper coated with nickel and plated with chromium, it is said to heat evenly all round almost at once, while the chromium finish permits keeping the pan bright and clean with scouring. It is proof against rust and corrosion.

Governor Merriam Sticks by His Guns

By TALBOT LAKE

ONE of Dr. Townsend's followers is still strong for him, even with the old-age plan seemingly on the wane where popular support is concerned. Governor Frank F. Merriam of California sticks by his guns, despite somewhat frantic signaling from the Republican party to come home and be conservative again.

It was at the climax of his successful fight against Sinclair's EPICS party that Governor Merriam turned to the $200 per month plan, and he has not yet stepped down from his stand. Various other plans of the Utopian order in the sunny state are still going strong also, so that there is a sizable wedge absent from the vote pie, but that doesn't bother Merriam.

He is a jolly soul, who believes most disagreements can be settled by talking things over under favorable auspices. He is friendly to everybody, so that there is no doubt this attribute has much to do with the retention of his popularity among others than the Townsendites.

Governor Merriam is not a native son by birth—only by adoption. He hails originally from Hopkinton, Iowa, in the farm country. He worked his way through Lenox College, and in turn was a janitor, carpenter, librarian, farmer and school principal. In 1903 he moved to Long Beach, California, and interested himself in real estate. He thrived on this fare, and in the process found himself involved in politics.

He has always been committed to prohibition, and has been a vigorous champion of the soldiers' bonus. He was Lieutenant-Governor when James Rolph, Jr., the serving governor, died in 1934, and there you are. He faced a general strike six weeks after taking office, and his work in that crisis brought him national attention—so much so he has often been whispered about as Presidential material.

Eggs as Tonic

Before long we will be considering spring tonics. But eggs, according to the Bureau of Home Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, are better than any spring tonic. They are rich in iron for the formation of good red blood, vitamins that promote growth and assist in bone formation, and protein for body building and repair.

Guide to Charm

Eyes and Lips Need Special Evening Care

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THE success of any party begins in your bathtub. You can only enjoy yourself if you know that you are thoroughly fresh and dainty. So turn on your bath water and add a few drops of bath essence, a generous sprinkling of your favorite bath salts or pine crystals to soften and scent it as the first step toward a successful evening.

While the water is running into the tub cleanse your face with quick-melting cream, then remove the soiled oil and wash with tepid water and bland soap. Add more oil or rich tissue cream and leave it on your face, throat, and arms while you lie in the warm water and relax as many minutes as you can spare.

MISS HUNT

Before leaving the tub, soap your body thoroughly and scrub with a soft brush or rough bath mitt to make your skin pink and glowing. Rinse with cool water, then dip your wash cloth in cold water and slap it vigorously over your entire body.

Dry with a large, soft towel and use your favorite deodorizing preparation. Your next step is to give the necessary attention to your fingertips. If you have had a manicure recently merely remove the old polish and substitute a brighter shade for evening. Nothing is so effective as gay, pretty nails for the party mood.

Now your evening make-up. Remove any remaining cream or oil with tissues and pat your neck, throat and face with a large pad of cotton dipped in cold skin tonic. While the skin is still slightly damp take one of the tinted foundation creams that comes in stick form and apply a tiny bit to each cheek, the nose, forehead, and chin.

Dip your fingertips in cold water and spread the foundation evenly, working outward from the center of the face. This type of powder base will make the coarse-pored skin appear firm and fine-textured and will conceal blemishes and fine lines. Apply paste rouge and blend it evenly until the color is the right intensity, then dust on powder and remove the excess with a soft blending brush or piece of cotton.

If you want a more youthful flush after applying rouge and powder take a small pad of cotton, dampen it with skin tonic and smooth it lightly over the rouged area of the cheeks.

Before adding the finishing touches to your make-up be sure that chest, shoulders, arms, and back receive their share of attraction. You can follow the same methods of make-up you use on your face, or you can use a liquid powder lotion tinted to match the face powder.

Your eyes and lips should be given special emphasis for evening. Make your lashes long and mysterious by touching them with mascara; see that your eyebrows are smooth and well-groomed and your eyelids subtly shaded. Blue, green and violet are standard colors of eye shadow, but you may get lovely blendings of these shades, some flecked with silver, gold or bronze to make your eyes sparkle.

Buttons Are Wired

Wire the buttons onto your frock if you wish to follow fashion's newest whim. The buttons and buckle on Lucille Ball's newest street frock are mother-of-pearl, tied to the dress with ordinary wire. Challis, Old Fabric, Back With Latest Paris Style

By IRENE VAIL

New York — While the excitement is at white heat over the Paris opening models arriving daily, let's list some of the more interesting and more practical items, for instance, Challis, which is an old fabric being rediscovered. Chanel includes in her collection a wool challis evening gown, in peasant florals, in greens and fuchsia reds. Challis has been given an extremely important place in spring showings of daytime fashions, and certain high style dress houses are also promoting challis for dinner and evening wear, using this medium in tailored dinner suits as well as in the more picturesque type of formal frock. Chanel shows costumes developed in prints that have sailboat and wave patterns in white on navy. There have been many amusing ideas in prints this season, lucky numbers, dashing horses, life-savers, etc., and now we have more to add to the varied print picture. Chanel is showing for evening all-over jet sequin dresses with others embroidered with sequins.

Schiaparelli scores again with a new silhouette, which she calls "Parachute" because the skirts have sufficient soft fulness to drift lightly as the mannequin walks. Several afternoon skirts are demurely rounded out near the knees by vertical gores, and are then slightly narrowed toward the hem. But the majority of evening gowns, developed in supple silks, have a slight bias flare or fulness. In a couple of models, soft folds appear down the front from a high waistline.

Although the collection as a whole is definitely modern, the early 19th Century contributes whimsies like perfumed paper-frilled bouquets carried by mannequins, and reproduced in miniature for buttons on tailored suits; or old-fashioned shapes in painted isinglass; or a heart-shaped gold vanity; or net gloves which match dust ruffles peeping from beneath cocktail and dinner dress hems. One metal lame gown has a ruffle resembling perforated paper used for pantry shelves, but gilded.

Bernard, and such houses as run to tailleurs, show a preference for frilly blouses. Some dressy suits, in fact, have wide bertha collars. Blouse makers show some exquisitely dainty blouses with which to complete the tailleur, which may be either gray or navy with the accent on gray. There are also several silk suits of the dressmaker type, some of which are printed, and one house goes in for printed coats and jackets, with plain skirts or dresses, as the case may be.

Shoulder manipulation, sheer dresses — pleated as a rule with jeweled belts, many flowers and colorful accessories, interesting trimmings, but, above all, fabrics are the dominant features which have been most applauded.

Short Cuts

When making sandwiches for a crowd warm the butter first. It will spread more easily and will go a longer way.

When stewing dried fruits, such as prunes, figs, peaches, apricots, try adding a small amount of lemon juice and grated lemon rind.

When lining a baking pan with brown paper be sure to grease the upper surface of the paper in addition to greasing the pan itself.

Father Wants 'Stick-to-Ribs' Type of Menu

By JUDITH WILSON

WHEN FATHER hurries home through the wind and sleet these nights nothing will please him more than a steaming dish of corned beef and cabbage, a savory pot roast, or an old-fashioned chicken fricassee with corn pudding. Forget about such non-essentials as appetizers and salads and finish the meal with generous wedges of pie and big cups of strong, fragrant coffee.

Chicken Fricassee

Wash and disjoint a 3-pound chicken and put into a kettle with 6 cups of water, 1 sliced onion, 2 cloves, a bit of bayleaf and a teaspoon salt. Simmer until the chicken is tender. Take out the pieces, roll them in flour and brown in a frying pan in bacon fat. Remove the pieces of chicken, drain off some of the fat and blend 1½ tablespoons flour into that remaining. Strain the chicken broth into the pan and stir until the sauce is smooth and thickened. Pour over the chicken and serve with hot biscuits, vegetables and boiled potatoes if they are wanted.

Lemon Pie

Into a double boiler put the yolks of 4 eggs, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup lemon juice and the grated rind of 1 lemon. Stir until thick and smooth then add 1 teaspoon gelatin softened in 1/3 cup cold water. Remove from the fire, cool slightly and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs. Turn into a baked pie shell. Make a meringue from the remaining whites, heap on the pie and bake in a slow oven until the meringue is brown. Or use 4 whites in the filling and serve the pie with slightly sweetened whipped cream.

New England Dinner

Soak 6 pounds corned beef in cold water 1 hour, drain, cover with fresh cold water and bring to a boil in a covered kettle. Boil 3 hours or until done. About 1 hour before serving time, transfer a part of the liquid to another large kettle. Into this put 6 pared onions, 4 potatoes, 6 carrots and 2 small white turnips that have been cut into large pieces. Cook for half an hour and then add 1 medium-sized cabbage that has been cut into wedges for serving. Continue cooking until the vegetables are tender. Place the corned beef on a large platter and serve surrounded by the vegetables. Six small beets that have been cooked whole in a separate kettle should accompany this hearty combination.

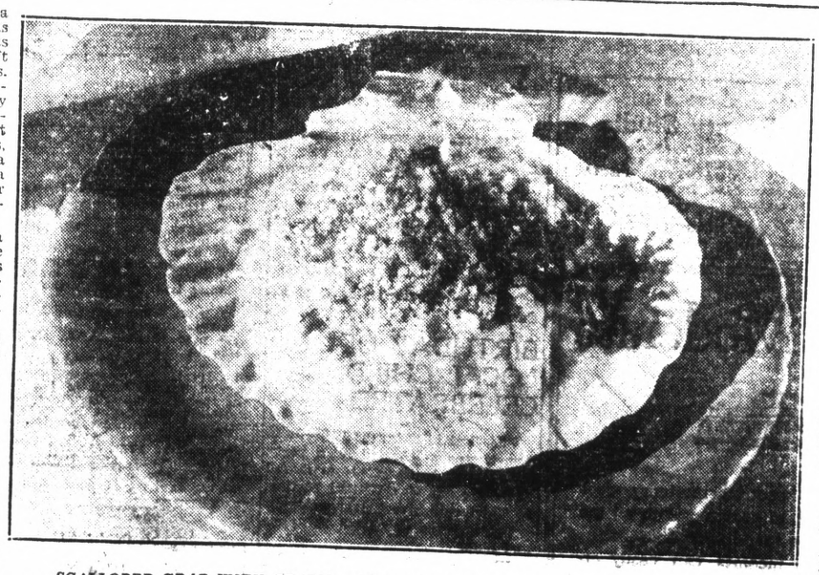

Meat-Macaroni Pudding

Melt 2 tablespoons butter and add 6 mushrooms peeled and chopped and 1½ cups chopped cooked veal or pork. Cook slowly for about 20 minutes, add 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 2 cups of canned tomatoes rubbed through a seive and 3 cups cooked macaroni and cook a little while longer. Turn into a greased casserole, cover with slices of hard-cooked egg and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes.

Lemon Bread Pudding

Soak 1 cup very dry or 1½ cups moist bread crumbs in 2 cups milk for ½ hour. Cream ¼ cup shortening with ½ cup sugar and add lightly beaten yolks of 2 eggs, the juice and grated rind of a lemon, the bread crumbs and milk. Pour into a buttered mold and bake 20 minutes in a slow oven. Cover with a meringue made by whipping the egg whites with 4 tablespoons sugar. Return to the oven until the meringue is nicely browned.

DAINTY DISH DAINTILY SERVED

SCALLOPED CRAB WITH BRAZIL NUTS: ¼ cup butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon paprika, nutmeg, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 cups crabmeat, ¾ cup ground Brazil nuts.

Melt butter, stir in flour and when well blended, stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thick. Add seasonings and crabmeat, which has been carefully looked over. Pack in crab or scallop shells, sprinkle with ground Brazil nuts and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until golden brown. This mixture may be baked in a casserole.

MODERN WOMEN

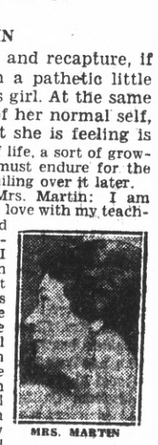

Advice in No Uncertain Terms to a Sixteen-Year-Old Who Loves Teacher

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

WOULD you be young again? Read below and recapture, if you can, the torment resulting in such a pathetic little letter that my heart aches with pity for this girl. At the same time I ache to shake her into a semblance of her normal self, and to rouse in her a realization that what she is feeling is just a phase of life, a sort of growing pain she must endure for the pleasure of smiling over it later.

"My dear Mrs. Martin: I am sixteen and in love with my teacher. He has paid considerable attention to me. I love him with all my heart and sometimes I think I'll die if I can't have him. What shall I do? Tell him and take chances on what he will say? I love him more than my own life and there's no one else for me?

"High Schooler."

Don't Be Absurd

You must not make yourself absurd by any declaration. How can you possibly entertain such a thought? Do you want to be humiliated by being laughed at? Even though your teacher may seem to have "paid you considerable attention" you have no right to misconstrue his reason for doing so or to presume on his kindness.

You are too young to realize your attachment for your teacher is a most common experience among impressionable young women with personable teachers. Believe me, it is only a phase through which you are passing, a most unhappy one, as you have discovered. You must not encourage yourself in it.

You must, on the other hand, learn to regard such attacks as a form of emotional measles and have confidence in Nature to make you well. You won't die, my dear of this, or of subsequent attacks, no matter how violent they seem. What you want is to live, and to live happily. Believe me, the chances of living happily with a man who inspires these emotions at sixteen is remote. No matter how young your teacher is he is too old for a girl who is his pupil.

Make Him Proud

If you really do love him, in your fashion, show him what a fine girl you really are and what a fine woman you mean to be. Be a good student, which means keep your mind on your work, not your teacher. Make him proud of you as a pupil and eager to be your friend. Unless he is entirely unworthy of his post of trust he cannot be anything to you but a menace so long as you are thrown so completely off balance, not by the man himself, but by what he represents to you.

Don't be angry because of my plain speaking, or jump to the conclusion I do not know what I am talking about. Every girl knows what it is to have had at some time in her life a mild or mad infatuation for her teacher or some attractive and unattainable male. I do so wish you could realize this!

Muster your sense of humor and common sense to the rescue in time to keep you from making a fool of yourself and a fool of this poor man, who in all probability has done nothing to call forth such ardor. He may be married, or deeply interested in some girl of appropriate age and attainments.

Give yourself time to grow up. Don't ruin your chances for real happiness by miscalculating, or over-estimating your first encounter with love. You are much too young to be able to analyze your feelings, or to know the real from the counterfeit love.

If it pleases you to make high drama out of the situation it can only make mischief when you lose control of the situation and give away your hand. Not a word about this to anyone, least of all to your teacher.

You and Your Child

Child Is Entitled to Benefit of Doubt

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

MOTHER emerged from the pantry and sternly demanded, "John, did you break a jar of preserves?" The boy looked up at his mother. "Who, me?" "Yes, you!" Mother's look was so penetrating that the boy turned his head away, as from a sharp light. "Come and see what you did, John." The boy ambled to the pantry door. He went with an air that certainly suggested guilt. On the floor inside he saw a messy mixture of broken glass and prune jam. He whistled as from surprise. "Well?" mother demanded. "I didn't do it, mother. Honest. How could I get up there to do it?"

MRS. GOWARD

Just then the cat stole in. In an aside, John addressed it. "Hello, Peter. Where've you been?" "Never mind Peter," mother snapped. "You are not telling me the truth, John Henry. And you know it." "Okay, so I did it," the boy agreed in despair. "That's what I thought right along. John! Now get the shovel from behind the kitchen stove and clean up this mess."

The boy was muttering, "If you think I did it, okay. But I didn't do it." Mother heard and paid no attention to what he was saying. She was satisfied in having wrung a confession from him, in what she believed was an unguarded moment. She had been after the truth, and by dint of her cleverness she had got it.

Parents who believe they can read guilt or innocence in a child's looks are taking a chance. Most children prefer to hide their feelings. This is particularly true when being cross-examined with an accusing finger pointed at them.

Under such treatment a child cannot maintain his self-possession. No longer sure of himself, he is certain to bungle his answers. Or through fear he even may confess to guilt though innocent. Such complications cannot be avoided when the parent is quick to blame a child on circumstantial evidence. A wise parent is willing to take a chance that a child may be innocent when he claims he is.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "I was recently introduced to two young men. One was called Harry Lee, Jr.; the other, Harry Lee, 2nd. What is their relationship to each other? —Betty."

ANSWER: They are probably cousins. Junior means son or grandson of a man of the same name, while 2nd indicates a nephew or cousin of the man whose name he bears.

QUESTION: "Should the guest of honor be served first with each course?—Mrs. R. B."

ANSWER: This method is not incorrect. But a better procedure, when the party is fairly large, is to serve the guest of honor with the first course, the guest beside him with the second course, and so on. In this way the same person will not be served last with each course. The comfort of other guests has to be considered as well as the guest of honor's.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Sailor Freed In S. F. Death To Be Married

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7 —UP—Apparently free of the murder charges which developed from an Armistice Day celebration, 22-year-old Henry Golombeck, U. S. Navy petty officer, announced plans today for getting married as soon as he is released from jail.

He is expected to leave jail Monday, as District Attorney Matthew Brady announced after Golombeck's second trial ended in a jury disagreement, he would move to have the murder charge dropped.

Golombeck said he intended to marry 24-year-old Edith Austin, a Seattle nurse.

"Will They Wash"

MAKING HIS first public appearance since his accession to Britain's throne, here is King Edward VIII as he visited the textile section of the British Industries Fair at White City, near London. Evidencing an intense interest in goods representing many parts of the Empire, he was shown men's shirts made of paper. "But will they wash?" he pleaded.

ciple" a league offer to discuss peace, gave no positive sign of how it reacted to Germany's action. Premier Benito Mussolini kept in constant touch with developments.

Lights burned also in the chancelleries of almost every nation in Europe as government officials considered the grave crisis.

TROOPS ARE SENT

BERLIN, March 7—UP— Adolf Hitler ordered an estimated 25,000 German troops into the demilitarized Rhineland adjoining the borders of France and Belgium today.

Thus by one-sided action he sank without a trace the last vestige of the repressive clauses of the Versailles treaty.

PEACE OFFER

At the same time, the Fuehrer offered France and Belgium, his former enemies, 25 years of peace in Western Europe, during which time the three powers would agree not to make war on one another.

Hitler announced his bold stroke first to the diplomatic representatives of the powers, and then to a madly-cheering Reichstag.

AMAZING SPEECH

By wireless, telephone and telegraph, the news was flashed to the capitals of the world. Hitler then retired to await results.

Hitler's speech was one of the most amazing in modern diplomatic history. Almost every word came with telling impact as he laid down a program which gave Europe, now torn by dissension, the outright alternative—war or peace.

As his gesture to show that Germany feels free and equal to every nation on earth, he started 19 battalions of infantry and 13 detachments of artillery moving into the Rhineland symbolic of Germany's newly won military might if she has to fight.

thought not very cheerfully.

But if the government stepped there we would not be entitled to any seat on the wailing wall, however when the rulers of our lives and destinies begin their probing into matters which are none of their darn business, that is the time we get up on our hind legs and become vociferiously vocal in protest.

At the present writing we are informed by a news dispatch that "seven hundred surveys, covering almost every phase of American life are being made under the auspices and with funds supplied by the Works Progress Administration." I do not know how many surveys will penetrate into the secret abiding places of my existence and my daily activities, my comings and goings and my elements of weakness and strength, but of one fact I am firmly convinced, and that the number is just 700 too many. When I want to lay my life bare I will do it in the form of a biography and present the government with a copy, but until such a foolish idea gets the best of what little judgment I possess, I want to be let alone.

The so-called surveys are being made to give needy people work, with which I have no quarrel, but it seems that some other form of employment could be devised that would be more beneficial and enduring.

Although patient and long-suffering, endowed with a willingness to endure, and generally at peace with my fellow man. I am afraid that if any representative of a "nosey" government should appear at my office or home door and disclose the nature of his errand I would most likely reach in his direction and tweak his proboscis.

POLICE SENT TO SCENE OF UNION BATTLE

ASTORIA, Ore., March 7 —UP—With a detail of state police headed by State Superintendent Charles Pray guarding the Crown-Willamette company's Lewis and Clark logging camp tonight, it was believed here that the loggers' union war that flared flatally this morning would subside.

The day passed peacefully, following the outbreak at dawn when 150 members of the sawmill and timber workers union rushed the sleeping camp and were repulsed with rifle and shotgun fire.

BIG BATTLE

Men and women of the camp fought side by side to repel the attackers who fled leaving James Ray and William Blackwood shot dead on the ground and Viola Wedel, 17, wounded.

A score of others on both sides suffered minor wounds, some from shotgun pellets, other from clubs and pieces of pipe used as weapons in the affray.

CAMP WRECKED

The camp was a wreck. The raiders broke windows with rocks, overturned bunk houses and shattered 13 parked automobiles with sledge hammers. Ray, one of the hammer wielders, lay dead beside his hammer with a bullet through his heart.

Willis West, district attorney, said the fight was direct outgrowth of a long-standing dispute between the saw mill union and the Pulp Sulphite workers, to which union the Crown-Willamette men belong. The Saw Mill Union had unsuccessfully attempted to establish jurisdiction over the Crown camps in this county and several beatings had occurred in recent months as result of the squabble. Hard feeling between the two unions has been increasing steadily.

Arrest Delays Marriage Of Texas Couple

OAKLAND, March 7.—UP— Arrested on a grand theft warrant from Petrolia, Texas, S. W. Southerland, 27, of Wichita, Kansas, today was forced to postpone his wedding to Ova Joe Patterson, 18, of Holliday, Texas.

A policeman walked up to Southerland when the couple appeared at the Oakland marriage license bureau and told him he was under arrest.

Southerland denied he had been guilty of any dishonesty, but said the charges might be based on removal of a load of pipe from an oil field.

San Francisco, and Charles Larkin present deputy warden at the Repressa institution, are among those considered. C. I. Plummer, an investigator on District Attorney Buron Fitts' staff at Los Angeles, also has been mentioned.

San Quentin's new boss is six feet, six inches tall. He weighs 250 pounds. For 35 years he has been a law enforcement officer, a peace officer of the old school. Ater years as city marshal, sheriff and police chief in Tulare and Visalia, he came to Folsom as its warden in 1927.

QUIET PRISON

He was greeted with a riot — the bloody Thanksgiving Day riot of 1927. Twelve prisoners and guards were killed before Smith refusing to give in to the convicts at a time when they appeared to have control, smashed the revolt.

Since then Folsom has been relatively quiet.

OLD PEOPLE find way to keep breath wholesome

Halitosis (bad breath) quickly yields to Listerine, safe antiseptic and deodorant

Either because of stomach disturbances, food fermentation, or the wearing of false teeth, old people frequently have halitosis (bad breath). No wonder others consider them a nuisance.

But now Science has found that the regular use of Listerine will often overcome offensive mouth odors due to the fermentation of tiny bits of food on mouth, teeth, or dental plate surfaces.

This safe antiseptic and quick deodorant works quickly. It cleanses mouth, teeth, and gum surfaces. Halts fermentation and putrefaction, a major cause of odors, and then counteracts the odors themselves.

Try using Listerine every two or three days. See how much more wholesome it leaves your mouth. How it sweetens your breath. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.
